

Random act of kindness - 19/02/2020

It's the smallest things that make the biggest differences. A small kind gesture easily turns out to be a significant memory for the benefactor that inspires him to continue the chain and cause an endless ripple. With the belief that even smallest act of kindness could enrich a stranger's life, the NSS unit of SIESGST conducted a social drive wherein the volunteers readily helped various strangers complete their day-to-day work.

The volunteers covered various locations in Nerul, Navi Mumbai during this activity and made sure to give an extra set of hands to each individual who needed them. At first, most of the people whom they approached were hesitant to accept help from strangers but as the volunteers started communicating with them, they slowly built their trust. They helped in unloading Logs, arranging vegetables and fruits in the market, cleaning and cooking in the Gurudwara, carrying vegetable crates and much more. After about 2 hours, the volunteers re-assembled in college to share their experiences.

This turned out to be a very humbling experience for the volunteers as the kindness shown by them was amplified to a level that they were overwhelmed by the feedback. This activity truly helped the volunteers in imbibing philanthropic values that will guide them throughout their life.
